"From Calamity to Cooperation"

Dr. Camila Alire, Dean of Libraries

Sessions

Thursday, June 4, 1998

10:30 am - NOON

Session A : POETRY ZINES: DEFINING AND COLLECTING A LITERARY SUBCULTURE

Presenter

- Dr. Michael Basinski, Assistant Curator
Poetry/Rare Books Collection
University at Buffalo

Facilitator

- Gary Roberts, Alfred University

Poetry zines are the product of a non-traditional literary subculture, a subculture that values creative outrage and rebelliousness, anarchistic self-reliance and the unique creativity of the individual. As independent entities, zines push the boundaries of traditional poetry in the areas of form and content. They stand against all established literary culture. Because of the creative editorial impulse and impulsiveness and volatile nature of the medium, poetry zines create problems for collecting libraries. Among the problems zines present are the ever-present question of their long term research value and the larger looming problem of how to breach and collect a non-standard literary subculture. This session will define the literary importance of poetry zines and offer suggestions on how to deal with this anti-establishment literary subculture.

Session B: TEACHING IN AN ELECTRONIC ENVIRONMENT

Presenters

- Margie Wells, Library Director, Undergraduate Library, University at Buffalo
- Carol Anne Germain, Reference Librarian, University at Albany
- Debby Emerson, Reference/Instruction Librarian, Monroe Community College
- Bill Drew, Associate Librarian, Systems/Reference, SUNY/Morrisville
- Nina Warren, Assistant Professor/Librarian, Genesee Community College

Facilitator

- Julie Wash, Information Services/Reference Librarian, SUNY/Brockport

Ever wonder how to teach, or how to teach better and have your students learn more while teaching in an electronic classroom? This panel of experienced librarians will show you how! Using examples from their own experiences, each panelist will share practical teaching methods for teaching effectively in a computer lab environment. Topics such as: how do I decide when to use hands-on or when to do demonstrations? Should I allow free time for students to explore on their own? How can I teach information literacy in this new environment in 50 minutes or should I even try? What is the best classroom design? How has the electronic classroom changed the way we teach? and more will be explored. Whether you're a seasoned library instruction librarian or a "newbie" to teaching information literacy, you will be sure to gain valuable information from this session.

Session C: UNION ISSUES FOR LIBRARIANS

Presenters

- Patricia Bentley, Librarian, SUNY/Plattsburgh and Chapter President of Plattsburgh UUP, Moderator and speaker
- Jean Dickson, Librarian, University at Buffalo, and Chapter President, University at Buffalo, UUP (Tenure & Faculty Status)
- David Kreh, Reference Bibliographer, Education, Cortland
- Jeanne Galbraith, Assistant Director of Access Services, Stony Brook
- Candace Merbler, Reference Support Services, Albany

Union leadership and activism and librarianship are NOT mutually exclusive. They ARE symbiotic and mutually rewarding relationships as seen by the number of librarians actively involved in SUNY unions. Whether we are members of UUP (United University Professionals) or NEA (National Education Association), most of us proceeded through our formal education without thought of union issues, functions, or organization. Unions have become increasingly active in education and in other professions, such as medicine and nursing. How does this impact our work and professional lives? What kinds of involvements are there for librarians in unions? A panel of your colleagues will discuss the day-to-day issues such as local chapter leadership, representations, and strategies for involvement. This session will provide you with new ideas and strategies. Come and share your ideas!

Session D: THE CHANGING ENVIRONMENT OF PATRON SERVICES

Presenters

- Terry Leonard, Patron Services Librarian, SUNY/Plattsburgh
- Thomas J. Larson, Coordinator of Reference and Database Services, SUNY/Oswego
- Karen Senglaup, Director, General Libraries Access Services, University at Buffalo

Facilitator

- Barbara Burd, Reference and Instruction Librarian, SUNY/Binghamton

Analysis of some library statistics shows a change in the use of reference, circulation, interlibrary loan/document delivery, and other patron services. Why is this occurring? Are other services becoming more popular? Is there a shift occurring as a result of electronic sources? How can these trends be examined and used for strategic planning? This panel will discuss these issues.

Sessions

Thursday, June 4, 1998

2:45 - 3:45 pm

Session E: THE HOLLAND LAND COMPANY RECORDS IN REED LIBRARY

Presenter

- Franciska Safran, Librarian and Curator, Reed Library
SUNY/Fredonia

During the 1980's the Holland Land Company Manuscript Preservation Project microfilmed the Archives of the Holland Land Company in the Netherlands. Later, related collections were located and microfilmed in US repositories. Today, Reed Library holds nearly 400 reels of microfilm and over 100 original land sales ledgers that document the opening and development of frontier settlements on Dutch held lands. This presentation, with a historical introduction, will be accompanied by slides and samples of various manuscript documents.

Session F: SUNY PERSPECTIVES ON INFORMATION LITERACY

Presenters

- Maryruth Glogowski, Library Director, Buffalo State College, and Chair, Information Literacy Initiative Task Force, SUNY Council of Library Directors
- Dr. Gail M. Staines, Coordinator, Library Instruction, Niagara County Community College, and Chair, Web-based Information Literacy Task Force, SUNY Council of Library Directors
- Dr. Harry Pence, SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor of Chemistry, SUNY/Oneonta

The rapid expansion of new electronic information sources represents a profound challenge to SUNY faculty and librarians. Although these new resources open exciting new educational avenues for both faculty and students, they also require a re-examination of how we use and teach about information. This panel presentation will include an update on the status of the SUNY Information Literacy Initiative spearheaded by the SUNY Council of Library Directors, and funded by the Office of Library and Information Services; an update on the status of the Web-based Information Literacy Task Force; and a presentation on some thoughts about what needs to be accomplished and how SUNY constituent groups, such as SUNYLA and the SUNY FACT Committee can work cooperatively to develop strategies for SUNY-wide acceptance and support.

Session G: FORMAL & INFORMAL MENTORING: WHAT IT TAKES TO BUILD POSITIVE MENTORING RELATIONSHIPS

Presenters

- Deborah Curry, Acquisitions/Reference/Instruction Librarian, SUNY/Oswego
- Nancy Osborne, Coordinator of Special Collections/Coordinator of Instruction, SUNY/Oswego

Facilitator

- Marianne Eimer, Interlibrary Loan, SUNY/Fredonia

Mentoring, both formal and informal, can be a librarian's best experience if approached properly. It can be a nightmare if both parties haven't a clue what to expect. This interactive workshop will explore mentoring programs in academic libraries, participants' experiences, and issues regarding gender, race, tenure, etc. Participants will fill out a self-awareness mentoring questionnaire. Through discussion, role play, and debate participants will be offered information on great mentoring.

Sessions

Friday, June 5, 1998

- Marianne Hebert, Head of Technical Services, Purchase College
- Michael Lavin, Librarian, University at Buffalo

Facilitator

- Austin Booth, Humanities Specialist, University at Buffalo

Management of serials in an electronic environment has become quite complex. Do you subscribe to both the print, CD-ROM, and online versions of indexes and serials, or opt for online only or CD-ROM only? How do you make these choices? Panelists will discuss researching issues and attempts to set policies.

SESSION J: INTERNET CENSORSHIP IN CHINA

Presenter

- Michael Bailou Huang, Senior Assistant Librarian, SUNY/Oswego

Facilitator

- Jennifer Byrnes, University at Buffalo

Censorship in China is as long as Chinese history. The major content of censorship in China is pornography or political criticism. It comes as no surprise that an unruly information tool like the Internet causes major jitters. A brief history of censorship in China, the latest developments of the Internet, what procedures the Chinese government has taken to censor the Internet, and the impact of censorship on the future development of the Internet in China will be addressed.

Sessions

Friday, June 5, 1998

10:30 - NOON

SESSION K: INFORMATION LITERACY: COLLABORATING TO EFFECT CHANGE

Presenters

- Patricia Carroll-Mathes, Coordinator of Information Literacy, Ulster County Community College
- Larry Berk, Library Director, Ulster County Community College
- Other presenter TBA

Facilitator

- Jill Ortner, University at Buffalo

The information literacy program at Ulster County Community College is a work in progress which seeks to integrate information concepts and skills across the curriculum. The collaborative effort involves librarians and faculty from different disciplines. A major element is a one-credit course which introduces students to the use and evaluation of print and electronic information resources. Taught since 1995 on campus, the course made its debut on the World Wide Web in September 1997 as part of the SUNY Learning Network. Adopted as program requirement for several majors, the effort continues to make the course a general education requirement for all students. This session will describe campus political hurdles, realities of faculty collaboration, the process of restructuring a course with a multidisciplinary teaching team, development of information literacy skills of faculty, the support system required, persistence necessary to effect change with extreme resource limitations, and the impact on instruction at the institution. Presenters will include a librarian who developed the initial course, a faculty member who designed the WWW version, and a professor who teaches LIB 111.

SESSION L: OUTSOURCING: THE TECHNICAL SERVICES CONVERSATION CONTINUES

Presenters

- Dave Ritchie, Library Systems Coordinator, SUNY/Cortland
- Michael Handis, Catalog Librarian, Purchase College Library

Facilitator

- Cindy Hepfer, University at Buffalo

"Outsourcing" continues to be "hot" issue in the library field. Libraries have piloted such projects from Hawaii to the East Coast. Articles have recently appeared in American Libraries and other journals on this issue. This panel presentation will continue the conversation by dealing with issues of insourcing monographic acquisitions and cataloging, by discussing the effects on morale and staff performance, and by examining the current state of outsourcing from a community college point of view.

SESSION M: MARKETING YOUR LIBRARY TO ADMINISTRATION AND PATRONS

Presenter

- Frederick W. Stoss, Biological Sciences Librarian, Science and Engineering Library, University at Buffalo

Facilitator

- Cynthia Bogges, Graduate Student, School of Information and Library Studies, University at Buffalo

A newsletter can be an effective way for libraries to keep faculty, staff, and students abreast of new resources, collection developments, services, and other library activities. This session will provide an overview of "SEL RE: SOURCE" - a newsletter in print and electronic formats. The presentation will cover how-to develop a low cost library newsletter that can provide a significant return on investment and discuss the concept of a newsletter as an effective communication vehicle to promote libraries.

Session Title: Implementing and Managing an Academic Library Web Server

Presenter

Gary Roberts
SILS Student, University at Buffalo
Library Assistant, Herrick Memorial Library
Alfred University

As the demand for information technology increases and libraries continue to improve access to electronic information resources, the line between computer science and library studies becomes evermore nebulous. Today, librarians find themselves increasingly invested in web-based technologies. The server side of the client/server model was once the realm of the computing expert. Today, many libraries are finding that they can no longer delegate server management to computing professionals outside of the library. This session will explore the management and technological issues of implementing an academic library web server.
