

STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
SUNYLA
LIBRARIANS ASSOCIATION
June 15-17
SUNY Plattsburgh

Welcome to the SUNY College at Plattsburgh

President's Welcome
Angela Weiler

Welcome to the SUNYLA Conference!

Each year we gather together, as colleagues, professionals, and friends, to share what we've been working on during the past year and to learn from each other. Of equal importance, though, are the bonds we form and strengthen, bonds that are forged through personal, human contact. Regular face-to-face communication within a large university system is always difficult to arrange (particularly in the winter!), but on occasions such as this conference, when we can actually get together, eat together, learn together, and play together, we find once again that no e-mail list, blog, or telephone can quite match the "being there" experience.

May you have a wonderful time here, and leave the SUNYLA Conference inspired, refreshed, and rejuvenated!

Welcome from the Conference Chair
Shannon Pritting

Welcome to the 43rd SUNY Librarians Association Conference. Our theme for this year, "Shared Borders: Collaborating for Success," embodies what libraries have always been good at: sharing and collaborating. These two core principles of librarianship have kept libraries relevant, and will continue to keep us as important voices in diverse conversations. The program planning committee, especially Kim Davies Hoffman, has put together an agenda that could sustain a conference of several days. And, most importantly, Debra Kimok and the local arrangements committee at Plattsburgh have designed a conference experience that promises to entertain, stimulate conversations, and hopefully further collaborations across SUNY. I have thoroughly enjoyed collaborating with many SUNY Librarians who have helped with planning this conference, especially Logan Rath, who makes the complications of registration seem easy, and Pat Maxwell for her diligence, diplomacy, and creativity in working with our generous sponsors and exhibitors. Curtis Kendrick, Dean of Libraries and Information Resources for CUNY, will deliver a keynote that captures the essence of the conference that collaboration and working across borders is a complex and sometimes difficult task. I can't think of a group more able to take on this task than SUNY Librarians.

Conference Schedule

Please find the Schedule-at-a-Glance at the end of this program.

ACC=Angell College Center

FL=Feinberg Library

YOK=Yokum Hall

Wednesday, June 15th

9am - 4:30pm Registration (ACC, 2nd floor)
10am – noon Council Meeting (ACC Cardinal Lounge)
Noon - 1pm Boxed lunch available if prepaid (ACC Flynt Commons)
1-4pm C4D Meeting (ACC Alumni Room)

Preconferences

1 - 4pm

P1. Open Source CMS Playground (3-hour session) (FL 105)

Amanda Hollister, (Broome Community College)

This workshop will provide an overview and comparison of WordPress and Drupal, and demonstrate how open source CMSs can be used to enhance library websites. Bring your laptop to explore and work with basic installations of WordPress and Drupal CMSs.

P2. DIY Podcasting Workshop (3-hour session) (FL 129)

Dana Longley, Mark McBride, Carleen Huxley (Empire State, Buffalo State, Jefferson)

Participants will be introduced to the nuts and bolts of do-it-yourself podcasting. They will be asked to collaboratively plan and record a podcast, investigating and implementing aspects of podcast planning along the way: choosing appropriate recording and editing technologies and conversational topics and tone and weighing promotional and hosting options.

P3. 2, 90-minute back-to-back sessions (in the same room)

The Blog, The Mashup, The Tweet and Other Hot New Dances for the Library Classroom

(1-2:30pm) (FL 108)

Elin O'Hara-Gonya, John Cosgrove (Plattsburgh, Skidmore College)

This interactive workshop will allow participants to discover how incorporating Web 2.0 technologies into information literacy instruction can create new opportunities for discussing “old” research dilemmas.

Participants will learn about the pedagogical advantages Web 2.0 tools offer, view examples of successful assignments, and brainstorm ideas with colleagues.

How to Create a Mashup Using Google Maps (2:30-4pm) (FL 108)

Patrick Patterson (Potsdam)

In this workshop we will talk about what a mashup is all about and look at a few examples. After looking at some examples we will then create a map using Google Maps and add it to a web page which will be the basis for our mashup.

P4. 2 90-minute back-to-back sessions (in the same room)

Writing, Critical Thinking, and Information Literacy: How These Can Work Together

(1-2:30pm) (FL 103 F—Learning Center Classroom)

Sara Rofofsky Marcus, (CUNY Queensborough Community College)

With growing emphasis on writing, critical thinking, and information literacy, how does one incorporate all of these new skills without losing curricular objectives? Under the guidance of a librarian, instructional designer, and educator (both online and face-to-face), this session explores ways one can integrate all of these skills to better enhance learning of discipline-specific objectives rather than losing time.

Step Away from the Podium: Bringing Active Learning Techniques into the Library Classroom

(2:30-4pm) (FL 103 F—Learning Center Classroom)

Dunstan McNutt, Amanda Mitchell (Delhi)

“Step Away from the Podium” will be an interactive workshop designed to illustrate active learning techniques suitable for the librarian’s classroom. Research has shown that students learn more when they are active participants in the educational setting, so why not apply these teaching methods to information literacy instruction?

- 2 - 4:15pm Wineries Tour (Diversion), vans leave from Macdonough Hall at 2pm
- 2 - 3:30pm Campus Tour (Diversion), meet at the registration desk at ACC 2nd floor at 1:45pm
- 4:30 - 5pm New member orientation (walk to picnic)
- 5 - 7:30pm Picnic dinner, ACC Courtyard (rain place—ACC Flynt Commons)
- 7 - 9pm Membership social, ACC Flynt Commons

Thursday, June 16th

- 7:30am - noon Registration, ACC, 2nd floor
- 7:45 - 9am Breakfast (ACC Warren Ballrooms)
- 9 - 9:30am Welcome Address (2nd VP, Plattsburgh's LIS Dean, President of SUNY Plattsburgh), (ACC Warren Ballrooms)
- 9am - 5:30pm Exhibit Hall Open (ACC Warren Ballrooms)

Session Block I

9:40 - 10:25

A. How Far is Too Far? The Librarian’s Role in Reaching Out and Building Connections Through Collaboration (YOK 201)

Yu-Hui Chen, Julie Wang (University at Albany, Binghamton University)

The presenters from the Albany and Binghamton University libraries will share their experiences in collaborating with their campus departments through teaching, research, and service, as well as establishing national and international partnerships via collection development.

B. E-readers and Mobile Devices [Panel] (YOK 202)

Kristy Lee (New Paltz)

Panel discussion about e-readers and mobile devices

C. Caribbean Academic Libraries Creating Robust Technological Infrastructures Through University Collaborations (YOK 209)

Luis Nieves (Khalil) (University at Buffalo)

Caribbean academic libraries are using technology to expand their potential and impact. However, Caribbean libraries lack the resources to fully develop this potential. UB could develop a collaboration with an academic library in the Caribbean to assist a Caribbean academic library. This proposal is consistent with UB’ mission and the GSE’s mission.

D. Mapping Your Information Landscapes: A Framework for Advanced Information Literacy (YOK 206)

Jim Nichols (Oswego)

How do students develop the information-related practices needed for advanced work in their majors? Nichols's 3 Directions Model and Annemaree Lloyd's Information Landscapes Model offer insights into students' experiences in navigating information resources in their disciplines. Come explore how students can find their ways and build maps in their fields.

E. Partnering With Your Users: Getting Them to Tell You What They Want (YOK 208)

Keith Compeau, Jenica Rogers (Potsdam)

How to use formal and informal survey instruments to find out what your users want.

10:15-10:45am—Mid-Morning beverage break—Yokum lobby

Session Block II

10:35 - 11:20am

F. The Borderless Library: Merging Territories; Maintaining Identities (YOK 201)

Nancy Williamson, Marsha Spiegelman (Nassau)

Creating the Information Commons: In just one year, the Nassau Community College Library transformed itself from a traditional service model into the borderless library. Working from a previously designed library space plan, we created and implemented an Information Commons that encompasses all three parts of the research/writing continuum: research, technical support, and writing assistance.

G. Point of Presence Service: Using New Technology to Improve Student Experience Within and Without our Libraries (YOK 202)

Francis A. Parrella, (Suffolk)

How will developing “Smart” technologies affect the mission of academic libraries, and what effect will they have on our student bodies? New technologies, such as “Smart” devices utilizing mobile apps and QR barcodes will be demonstrated and discussed.

H. Two New Librarians: Two Perspectives on the Future of Cataloging (YOK 206)

Rachel Jaffe, Molly O'Brien (Binghamton)

The responsibility of librarians has shifted from housing items and creating static descriptions, to providing a more fluid approach to collaboration and bibliographic description. To accomplish this requires a re-working of workflows from an institutional point of view, via RDA and the semantic web, and through the inclusion of Web 2.0 features.

I. Teaching Information Literacy Across Time and Space - the Empire State College Library's Online Information Skills Tutorial (YOK 208)

Sara Hull, Sarah Morehouse (Empire State College)

The Empire State College librarians developed a WordPress-based Information Skills Tutorial to be used for self-directed learning, as the foundation for a course, or as a collection of one-shot, skill- and concept-focused tutorials. The librarians are now working with the Technology & Learning Collaborative to market it.

J. Pushing Through Invisible Borders: Strategies for Making the Community Safer for its LGBTQ Members (YOK 209)

Morgan Gwenwald (New Paltz)

Librarians can have an important role in helping to create a safe and supportive community for its lgbtq members. This session explores some of the issues and strategies encountered by an outreach librarian organizing staff and faculty to support queer students in not only surviving but in thriving on our campus.

Session Block III

11:30 - 12:15pm

K. Library Outreach at RIT: Bringing the Library and Writing Center to Students (YOK 201)

Daniel Trout, Sheryl Rhodes (University at Buffalo)

An examination of success and areas for improvement of the first-year partnership at the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) among the Wallace Library, the Math and Science Tutoring Center, and the Student Writing Center.

L. LibStats Panel: Staying Sane Despite Statistics (YOK 202)

Logan Rath, Suzanne Bell, Carleen Huxley (Brockport, University of Rochester, Jefferson)

This panel will discuss our experiences with LibStats, a free open-source product for keeping track of library statistics, and its hosted cousin, Gimlet. We will show our customizations of the product as well as demo some features.

M. In with the New: Training New Hires under a Restructured Framework (YOK 209)

Anne Larrivee, Jill Dixon, Benjamin Andrus (Binghamton)

The presentation will focus on the reorganization of the Research and Instruction Committee into team model. This transition has impacted collaboration between departments and the training of new library faculty members.

N. The Accidental Copyright Officer (YOK 206)

Matt Smith (Sullivan)

How simply helping staff and faculty with copyright issues led to my becoming the campus Copyright Officer (and inheriting the responsibilities thereof).

O. Finding a Level Playing Field & Blurring the Lines: How Two Librarians' Love of Sports Built a Relationship with the Athletic Department and Student-Athletes

(YOK 208)

Michael V. Daly, Daniel Towne (Fulton-Montgomery)

Student-athletes high use of the library but minimal interactions with librarians fostered a targeted outreach plan.

Librarians have debated the validity of websites while watching streaming NBA games, discussed effective search strategies on a treadmill, and been named Head Softball Coach. We've come a long way and we're in the game - for good.

Lunch and Keynote Address

12:30 - 2:30pm

Warren Ballrooms, Angell College Center

Annual Business Meeting: Angela Weiler, President

Friend of SUNYLA Award presented by Darryl Coleman

Remarks from N.J. Wolfe, last year's Friend of SUNYLA Award Winner

Keynote: Collaboration Hurts: Past the Point of No Return

Curtis L. Kendrick (The City University of New York)

This talk will draw upon lessons learned from many successful and less successful collaborations, and suggest that changes in academic library environments will necessitate even deeper collaborations in the future.

Curtis L. Kendrick is University Dean for Libraries and Information Resources at The City University of New York. As a senior member of the administrative staff of the University's Office of Academic Affairs, he works in concert with the Council of Chief Librarians and other University administrators to further enhance library system funding, resources, programs and services. Mr. Kendrick provides leadership in integrating the CUNY library system with the teaching, learning and research activities throughout the University, and in forging collaborations to improve access to information resources with other NYC educational and cultural institutions. The twenty-one campus CUNY library system serves 500,000 students and 6,700 full-time faculty, and has an annual budget of $50 million and collections exceeding seven million books and other formats. Prior to joining CUNY, Mr. Kendrick was Director of the Access Services Division of the Columbia University Libraries where he was responsible for the staffing, services and operation of a division that includes circulation, stack maintenance, collection maintenance, microforms, periodicals, access privileges and offsite shelving. He has also held library management positions at Harvard University, Stony Brook University and Oberlin College. A graduate of Brown University, Mr. Kendrick earned his MLS from Simmons College and his MBA from Emory University.

Session Block IV

3 - 4:30pm

P. Scholarly Communications: Refocusing the Library's Role at an Undergraduate College (YOK 202)

Kate Pitcher, Tracy Paradis (Geneseo)

As libraries are rapidly transforming themselves to meet new and anticipated future user demands, SUNY Geneseo's Milne Library is taking an innovative approach to addressing the scholarly communication issue, where librarians' new roles will be those of adviser, collaborator and guide in the scholarship life cycle. Our library's goal is to develop a promotional, educational and service model which serves the needs of Geneseo faculty, students and staff in their creative and scholarly endeavors from research through publication. The presenters will explain the history of our program and our new approach to providing these scholarly communication services at Milne.

Q. 2, 45-minute sessions back-to-back (in the same room)

Simple Library Mobile Web Design (3-3:45pm) (YOK 206)

Kristy Lee, Gary Oliver (New Paltz)

A short presentation of the design process of Sojourner Truth Library mobile web pages.

Launching a Mobile Web Presence for Your Library (3:45-4:30pm) (YOK 206)

Kathryn Frederick (Skidmore College)

Are you interested in launching a mobile web presence but not sure where to start? This presentation will discuss mobile web sites vs. mobile apps, how to format for mobile, how to test with a variety of devices, and much more!

R. A Bibliographic Mariner: Librarianship on the High Seas with SUNY Maritime

(YOK 100A)

Joseph Williams, Richard Delbango (Maritime, Nassau)

This presentation provides an overview of Maritime College's ship's library with an analysis of how the library serves the academic mission of the training ship. This discussion will provide an overview of the ship's library including a physical description, collection needs, technology, and the expanded duties of the librarian.

S. Information Management Assessment Mash-Up: Different Approaches, Different Campuses, What is Working, and What is Not. (YOK 208)

Michelle Toth, Susan Kraat, Jim Nichols, Karen Shockey, Marsha Spiegelman, Kerrie Fergen Wilkes. (Fredonia, Nassau, New Paltz, Oswego, Plattsburgh)

Five campuses share their approaches to Information Management assessment. A look at the different assessment tools and their pros and cons, including campus-grown assessments and rubrics as well as the ETS Iskills, Project SAILS, and James Madison's ILT Test.

T. Remembering Hiroshima and Nagasaki in SUNY Libraries (YOK 209)

Valerie Mittenberg, Morgan Gwenwald, Alok Kumar, John Kares Smith, Pamela Flinton (New Paltz, Oswego, Oneonta)

Several SUNY Libraries have helped students learn about the horrors of nuclear war by hosting an exhibit that documents the destruction caused by the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The Hiroshima Speaks exhibit was created by Communication Professor John Kares Smith and Physics Professor Alok Kumar, both of SUNY Oswego.

U. SUNYConnect. What's Next? Who Gets to Decide? (YOK 201)

Maureen Zajkowski, John Schumacher (OLIS)

Come join the OLIS to discuss a draft timeline for activities associated with electronic resources content review, selection and implementation of discovery software, and the upgrade and maintenance activities related to Aleph.

4:30-5:30pm Poster sessions with exhibitors (ACC Warren Ballrooms)

Wine and refreshments will be served during the poster sessions.

4:30-5:30pm WGIL Podcast Meeting (ACC Alumni Room)

6:00 pm Buses leave campus for dinner at Valcour, depart from Macdonough Hall
6:15-9:00pm Hors d'oeuvres and Dinner (CASH bar) / There is no ATM at Valcour and no capacity to accept credit cards, Valcour Conference Center
7:00-9:00pm Dinner, Valcour Conference Center
9:00pm Buses leave Valcour for campus
9:15pm - Free night

Friday, June 17th

7 - 9am Breakfast (ACC Warren Ballrooms)
7:30 – 10am Exhibit Hall open (ACC Warren Ballrooms)
8-8:45am: Special Interest Group Meetings, All are in the Angell College Center
 SUNY Library Directors (ACC, Alumni Room)
 Serials SIG (ACC Meeting Room 1)
 Information Management Assessment (ACC Meeting Room 2)
 SUNYLA Sustainability (ACC Meeting Room 3)
 Membership Development Committee (ACC Meeting Room 4)

Session Block V 9 - 10:30am

V. Working with Writing Tutors to Improve Research Instruction (YOK 202)

Barbara Kobritz, (Tompkins Cortland Community College)

What do students do with those sources you help them find? How do they connect searching, thinking, reading and writing? Can librarians and writing tutors collaborate to create a more effective teaching program? Some of us got together last year to talk about this emerging model. We enjoyed the conversation so much we agreed to do it again this year. Please join us!

W. 2, 45-minute sessions back-to-back (in the same room)

IDS Search: Built for Sharing (9-9:45am) (YOK 206)

Mike Mulligan, Adam Traub, Mike Curtis (Upstate, Rochester Institute of Technology)

IDS Search: delivering a world-wide collection of books to library patrons with a simple to use, shared discover and request service.

Using EMMA and eye tracking technology to conduct usability studies on IDS Search (9:45-10:30am) (YOK 206)

William Jones III, Katherine Ksiazek, Caitlin Pemberton, Brian Morgan, Maria Perpetua Liwanag Ann Marie Lauricella (SUNY Geneseo) Shannon Pritting (SUNY Oswego)

This presentation offers an overview of Eye Movement Miscue Analysis (EMMA) and how this research methodology helped to inform the development of the Information Delivery Services (IDS) search engine. During this usability study, participants performed various search tasks while their responses, search behaviors, and eye movements were recorded.

X. Eco-Literacy Conquers Illiteracy: A Collaboration between Librarians and Environmental Educators (YOK 201)

Fred Stoss (University at Buffalo)

This presentation examines collaborations between librarians and environmental educators stimulated by Richard Louv's book, "Last Child in the Woods: Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder." Strategies establishing these collaborations with environmental-themed books simultaneously develop an understanding of nature through experiential learning in environments where children live, go to school, and play.

Y. How much is that free lunch, anyway? Google, Facebook, and the Web Economy's impact on Intellectual Freedom (YOK 208)

Joshua Alvarez, Dr. Valerie Nessel (University at Buffalo)

Web services are provided to users in exchange for various types of attention and data, which is used to sell to advertisers. This model directly contributes to a lack of emphasis on user information control, and this asymmetry is the primary cause of intellectual freedom issues facing users today.

Z. Back to the Future of the Academic Library

Cancelled

10:15-10:45am—Mid-Morning beverage break—Yokum lobby

Session Block VI

10:45 - 11:30am

AA. Residence Life in the Library: Creating and Collaborating to Maximize Student Success (YOK 201)

Michelle L. Currier, Andrew Urbanek, Mary Bucher, Courtney Bish, Kristen Roberts (Canton, Herkimer)

In the Fall of 2010 SUNY Canton's Southworth Library and Department of Residential Life and Housing collaborated to create several Library RA positions, to help address noise and behavior issues in the Library. This presentation documents those efforts and successes, and allows time for a short Q&A session afterward.

BB. Blurring the Borders: Mashups and Appropriation, or Theft? (YOK 202)

Angela Weiler (Onondaga)

Building on the creative work of others is easier than ever, but fair use challenges abound. Fair use, or theft? See some examples, and judge for yourself!

CC. The SUNY Center for Professional Development: Supporting Learning and Collaboration Across the System (YOK 209)

Lisa Miles Raposo (CPD)

The SUNY CPD is a collaborative central resource for the SUNY Community providing access to professional development opportunities focused on the latest trends and established best practices in higher education. This session will give a status of the SUNY CPD strategic planning process and highlight several new initiatives already in progress.

DD. Big Rewards with Littles (YOK 206)

Carol Anne Germain (University at Albany)

Collaborations with faculty, using Littles (little online homework assignments), can help meet the ACRL IL standards. In this session, I will highlight the use of Littles – covering topics such as Internet security, identity theft, computer applications, censorship, privacy and more.

EE. Academic Library Autopsy Report Summary, 2050 (YOK 208)

Brian Sullivan (Alfred University)

A discussion of my January 2 article in The Chronicle of Higher Education, elaborating on the main points, as well as providing some background and response to some of the many comments I received (positive and negative).

Session Block VII

11:45 - 12:30pm

FF. Bridging the Gap: the Library's Role in Bringing Together College and Community

(YOK 202)

Rosemarie Romano (Cayuga)

This presentation will describe how the Cayuga Community College Library has initiated new partnerships with campus departments and community organizations, developing programs that have attracted new people to the library, promoted collaboration among library staff, faculty, and students, and engaged the college with the surrounding community to benefit both.

GG. Enhancing Academic Achievement Without Compromising Academic Integrity: Addressing the Needs of Students Through Collaboration. (YOK 206)

Susan W. Kaufman, Wanda M. Moore (Stony Brook)

The presentation discusses the roles and responsibilities the University has in attaining academic goals without compromising academic integrity. At Stony Brook University we have a sanctioned academic integrity seminar course, the "Q Course." The library and the Academic Judiciary Department have established a working relationship in which the library participates in the "Q Course", mandatory for those students accused of academic dishonesty.

HH. Collaboration Across Disciplines -- Second Masters for Librarians (YOK 208)

Logan Rath (Brockport) et al.

This panel presentation will focus on the emerging model of academic librarians earning technology based second masters as opposed to traditional subject based degrees.

~~II. Doing History: A Teaching Collaboration Between St. John's University and the New York Public Library~~

Cancelled

JJ. Taking the Lead: Technical Services Effectively Managing Large-Scale Weeding Projects in the Library (YOK 201)

Kate Pitcher (Geneseo)

How do libraries evaluate print collections and then manage the large-scale weeding and deselection projects which result? What data do we need for making decisions and how do we get it? Who manages this transformation? At SUNY Geneseo, our Technical Services unit is project manager, using the Getting It System Toolkit (GIST) Gift & Deselection Manager, a free open-source and innovative tool to transform the workflow of weeding with data for easier decision-making. In this presentation, the speaker will demonstrate how Technical Services is taking the lead at our library, managing a large-scale weeding project and using GIST GDM data to produce data for analysis and evaluation by librarians.

12:30 - 1:30 pm Boxed lunches and farewell (ACC Flynt Commons)

Posters

From “Traditional” Cataloging to New Frontiers: Fostering Future Metadata Specialists?

Irina Kandarasheva, Columbia University and Natalia Gelber, Long Island University

This poster describes a training program for paraprofessionals who create authorized forms of personal names contributed to the Library of Congress Authorities. Training paraprofessionals in authority work is a significant professional development step leading to creation of new metadata specialists who can contribute data to institutional repositories and digital libraries.

Using EMMA and Eye Tracking Technology to Conduct Usability Studies on IDS Search

William Jones III, Ann Marie Lauricella, Brian Morgan, Maria Perpetua Liwanag, Caitlin Pemberton, Katherine Ksaizek, All SUNY Geneseo

This poster offers an overview of Eye Movement Miscue Analysis (EMMA) and how this research methodology helped to inform the development of the Information Delivery Services (IDS) search engine. During this usability study, participants performed various search tasks while their responses, search behaviors, and eye movements were recorded.

The IDS Project: Effective Resource Sharing Based on Community, Innovation and Excellence.

Ed Rivenburgh, SUNY Geneseo; Tim Bowersox, SUNY Geneseo; Mike Curtis, Upstate Medical; Mike Mulligan, Upstate Medical; Cyril Oberlander, SUNY Geneseo; Kate Pitcher, SUNY Geneseo; Shannon Pritting, SUNY Oswego; Mark Sullivan, SUNY Geneseo; Adam Traub, RIT.

The Information Delivery Services (IDS) S Project is a unique cooperative of 62 academic and research libraries across New York. Going beyond reciprocal resource sharing, the IDS Project has become renowned for its open source software, ILLiad enhancements, and mutually supportive community based on best practices. The poster presenters will explain the services and software available without charge to all IDS Project libraries.

Communicating Library Value by Collaborating with our Users

Holly Heller-Ross, SUNY Plattsburgh

Online services, reference, instruction, collection development, study spaces, and faculty research; libraries offer it all. Still, how can libraries better communicate what we offer? By emphasizing value to the patron, not features! Drawing from examples at Feinberg Library, this poster will show how the “value” approach has transformed library communications.

Building Partnerships with the IT Department: How Collaborating with Tech Experts Leads to Better Reference Resolutions in an Online Environment

Ian Hertz and Heather Shalhoub, Empire State College

Libraries are becoming more and more technical in nature. At Empire State College, there are no physical resources; all materials are online. Therefore keeping servers, the ANGEL CMS with library resource links within, and EzProxy all working together takes a high level of collaborations between librarians and the technology help desk. Since 2006, Ian - background in Computer and Information Science - and since 2008, Heather - background in art, with a focus on web design - worked in collaboration with the technology help desk, in order to share information, procedures, and act as liaisons. This poster will describe the workflow and discuss some advantages and challenges there are when working in both capacities, as librarians and help desk technicians.

CitationFox: The Sly Way of Meeting Citation Needs

John Pardavila, Carol Anne Germain, and Daryl Bullis, University at Albany

Collaboration between instruction librarians and the systems department made it possible to create CitationFox, <http://library.albany.edu/cfox>, a Web-based tool to help students and faculty with the construction of citations. It has been well received and is becoming one of the most frequently viewed sources on the Libraries' homepage.

Socrates to Makerbots: Building a Signature Education Program

Jennifer Govan, I-Ching Wang, and Monica Navas, Teachers College Columbia University

The Gottesman Libraries' Education Program informs students, faculty and staff about the latest thinking in education, in ways that engage members of the community with one another and with a broad range of educational experts. The collaborative program also provides understanding of work being done throughout Teachers College.

Document Delivery and Electronic Reserves: A Marriage of Convenience and Efficiency

Pamela Flinton, SUNY Oneonta

How using expertise in two different areas to create one service crossed internal borders/boundaries and streamlined and existing process.

E-Textbook Exploration: Are Students Ready to Declare Their Independence From the Printed Text?

Pat Maxwell, Brockport

Students report on their experience reading their course textbook in digital format as part of a collaborative research project between librarians, faculty, bookstore and IT staff.
